MILWAUKEE HOUSE,

Corner Main street and Washington Avenue, a few doors east U. S. Hotel.

By SKINNER & AHLUM.

The above well known and established House having been refitted, enlarged and improved, throughout, and neatly furnished, has been leased for a term of years, by CHAS. SKINNER late of the American, in this city, and Mr. AHLUM, formerly of the Franklin House, Fort Winnebago.

New Furniture throughout, of the best style, and all other conveniences, have been supplied, to make it a First Class Hotel, and it is the determination of the proprietors to have it kept in good style.

A long experience, and great facilities for the business, enable us to make this House in all respects what it should be.

Plenty of barn and stable room, and plenty of good hay and oats always on hand.

☞ Our old customers and friends, and the public generally are invited to give us a call.

CITY HOTEL,

Corner Mason and East Water sts.

MILWAUKEE, - - - WISCONSIN.

THE above House having been leased by the subscribers for a term of years, has been entirely refurnished and renovated throughout, and will be conducted in such a manner that the most fastidious cannot fail to be pleased. The House contains One Hundred Rooms, and is situated in the most pleasant and healthy part of the city. The table will always be supplied with the best the market affords, and with attentive servants, clean rooms and beds, and a well furnished larder, the traveller may be sure of a comfortable home, where every reasonable want will be promptly attended to.

Attached to the House is a good Stable, where the first quality of Oats and Hay will always be found.

The subscribers trust by proper attention to their guests, to merit a portion of public patronage.

Bliss' Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy.

The prevailing diseases of our cold Northern clime, are pulmonary attacks, which alike affect the strong and the weak, and against which no human foresight can provide. It is all important then in this section of the country, that some simple and speedy remedy should be at hand, and accessible to all from its cheapness. This remedy we are happy to say, exists in Bliss's Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy, proved by thousands of cases. But we feel it to be a duty to caution the public against a counterfeit, and purchase only Bliss's Candy, the original and genuine article; observe his signature on each package. For sale by S. JOHNSON, Jr., 151 East Water street.

NEW FALL GOODS.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 6.

British Periodicals.

The Edinburgh, London Quarterly, Westminster, North British, and Blackwood's Magazine, have been, for nearly half a century, the leading Journals of Great Britain, the canons of literary criticism and merit, and the prominent exponents of the principles of the parties they represent. The Edinburgh Review is the oldest, the ablest and most dignified of its class. It was commenced under the care of Lord Brougham, the Rev. Sydney Smith, and Francis Jeffrey, and was the organ of the liberal, or Whig party in politics. Its standard of literary criticism has been high and honorable. Its pages have been enriched by the productions of some of the finest minds of the age. Under its auspices, authors of merit and genius, but who were unsupported by influence, or had not a name in "the circles," have been fostered into popularity, and made to exercise that weight which their talents demanded. Imbecility and mediocrity have withered beneath its breath, and its censures have almost immortalized some writers, by "damning them to everlasting fame." Its mighty voice has been lifted against the abuses of privilege and the corruptions of power. It has weakened the bonds of mental and governmental tyranny, and besotted prejudice has given way before its appeals and arguments. It has also done much to disabuse the minds of the British people of the prejudices that had been inculcated by venal writers and hired emissaries, who have given distorted views of our government and people. During those struggles in which the English nation and ours have been belligerent parties, it has raised high its voice of impartiality and judgment, and meted out praise and censure with an equal hand. It has made itself renowned by its unanswerable and eloquent appeals in behalf of inalienable rights, and human liberty. It has, in short, been liberal, progressive, humanitarian, and reformatory, and whatever tended to these results, has had its fostering care and powerful advocacy.

The influence of this journal finally awakened the jealousy of toryism and the administration, and to counteract it, the London Quarterly Review was established, and William Gifford was chosen for its Editor. Gifford was a critic, a satirist, and a politician. He was a virulent tory, and a strong, bitter, and vigorous partizan writer. He was also narrow-minded and bigoted. He had risen by the mere force of his talents and ambition from an humble station, to be the leader and organ of a great party. In the Editorship of his Review, he was assisted by some of the first men in the nation; and the pages of the London Quarterly were graced with the productions of scholars, poets, philosophers, statesmen and churchmen During a long period of years, these two journals have waged a strenuous and embittered warfare, as the representatives of the antagonistic principles of the great leading parties of the British government.

The Westminster Review is an able Journal, and was established to represent the principles of the Radicals, or ultra-liberal party of the British House of Commons. It has been the medium of a series of powerful articles against tory and exclusive privileges, hereditary right, kingly prerogative, and the other means of oppression that prevail under a monarchical and despotic government. The astounding developements concerning the wretchedness, starvation and suffering of the mining population, and manufacturing operatives, first appeared in its pages. It has also maintained a manful war against the alliance of church and state; and hoary abuses and giant wrongs, and evils walled up by power and prejudice, have been the objects of its unceasing attacks. Cobden, the great Reformer, has latterly found in it a strong ally in the promulgation of his free trade doctrines.

The North British Review was established by the great Dr. Chalmers, to meet the exigencies of the strong anti-national-church agitation. He, and the minds that acted with him, wanted an organ for the promulgation of their new ideas of ecclesiastical and political polity,—and also a medium for the expression of those new views which have passed under the name of "The Evangelism of the nineteenth century." It also discusses, in a dispassionate and christian spirit, works of a literary and scientific character.

To this account of the leading British Periodicals, we have but to add the name of Blackwood's Magazine—one of the most illustrious in the list of able and popular journals that have promulgated the principles, and represented the parties that have divided the British nation. In politics, it has always been high tory,—and it has gone all lengths in support of prerogative, privilege and power. It has evinced the most zealous partisanship throughout its entire course, and has attacked the opponents of its principles with the greatest power and severity. Its invectives against the liberal and radical party of Great Britain, have been directed without fear or remorse, and sometimes without even the proprieties of political warfare. But its articles have been in the most brilliant and fascinating style—its rhetoric has been faultless—and, above all, it has been consistent in its opposition to liberalism, so that, however obnoxious might be its principles, none could fail to be charmed and interested in its perusal. It has also contained biographies, histories, narratives of travel, and polite fictions of the first ability, and of great interest. Many of the serial works of Bulwer, and other distinguished writers, have been published in it, and have done much to extend its popularity.

In brief these works are the reflection of the thinking minds of Great Britain. If any excitement has agitated that country, or political and literary movements have swayed the current of thought and opinion, they have been the moving cause, or, taking a deep and active part,—have controlled, governed and directed it. They have given scope and force to the principles of their respective parties. Their approval has crowned with success new schemes of policy—their censure has branded and ruined the best laid plans to build up an interest or a faction. They have given new direction, to popular inquiry, and opened new fields for its exercise. They have whetted the edge of popular curiosity, and unfolded to the people, views and principles that had long laid hidden from them. A more liberal search after truth, a fuller and freer expression of opinion, and greater independence of thought have been the fruits of their investigations and teachings. In short, they have opened a new chapter in the history of mind, and what will be the mighty effects of which they have been the exciting cause, is hard to calculate or determine.

These works well deserve a place in the library of every intelligent and reflecting American, who wishes to understand the true condition of affairs in great Britain.

Some contemptible scoundrel, whose little sense of shame is evinced by his concealment of his name, is allowed to prostitute the columns of the Wisconsin and Free Democrat with personal abuse of the junior editor of this paper. For the comfort and edification of the conductors of those presses, the latter desires to say that he has not yet fully made up his mind whether those who are engaged in getting up, or aiding and abetting in the "spiritual doings" hereabouts are mostly knaves, or fools, or half and half. When he does, he will let them know.—Sentinel.

There! We have "allowed the junior editor of the Sentinel to prostitute the columns of the Free Democrat," with the confession "that he has not yet made up his mind" about the rappings and the promise that "when he does, he will let us know." We wait patiently for extraordinary developments.

The Gold Bluff Humbug.—The New York papers have been filled with accounts of an immense discovery of Gold Sands, on the beach, 30 miles west of Trinidad, under the auspices of Gen. John Wilson of Mo., a great rogue, and John A. Collins, Secretary of a Mining Company, do. The Company of thirty were to have $43,000,000 each. They divided it into 12,000 shares, sold 1000 shares for $100,000, when the bubble burst. There were ten miles of gold sand, and two miles of it worth six dollars the pound, and so plenty that it could not be exhausted in thousands of years! And the New York Tribune was taken in by such a story! Vive la Humbug!

Because it has a good harbor and plenty of high and dry land. We expect to see a large portion of Chicago moving here after they experience a few more deluges of mud.

☞Commodore Stockton was elected U. S. Senator for New Jersey, Feb. 21, by the absence of a Whig member. The "niggers" will all have to go to Africa now.

☞James F. Babcock, Editor of the New Haven Palladium, is nominated for Congress. A bitter and unscrupulous partisan, a narrow-minded and bigoted man, of a sour temper and jealous disposition, and hated cordially by all liberal-minded Whigs, and will therefore do very well for a Fillmore Congressman. The Convention which nominated him went the whole figure for Slavery and Union.

☞The Speaker and Clerk of the California House of Representatives are Democrats.

☞Henry M. Johnson, of Waterbury, has been convicted of killing Judson Bronson, of that town, and sentenced to the State Prison for life.

☞The New York Tribune publishes the Royal Proclamation of Gov. Gage against the Boston people in 1775, as a commentary on President Fillmore's Proclamation. The infamy of the Revolutionary times is light compared with that which will cling to the name of Fillmore.

☞Congress have done two good things besides giving us Cheap Postage—abolished constructive mileage, and rejected Ritchies' attempt to swindle the public Treasury.

☞Sholes' claim was voted down in the Assembly, 49 to 20. Two wrongs don't make one right.

Nominations.—The New Hampshire Democratic State Convention assembled at Concord, Feb. 19, threw their candidate for Governor, John Atwood, overboard, and nominated the present incumbent, Samuel Dinsmore.

The Connecticut Democratic State Convention met the same day and nominated

For Governor—Col. Thos. H. Seymour.
" Lieut. Governor—Chas. A. Pond.
" Secretary of State—J. C. Smith.
" Controller—Rufus G. Pinney.
" Treasurer—Henry D. Smith.

All of them, save J. C. Smith, are holding the offices to which they are nominated. The Convention passed Resolutions of the most thorough Slavery stripe. The New York Tribune advises the Whigs, notwithstanding their clocks and combs, and their Southern bias, not to try to out bid the Democrats for the favor of South Carolina, as they can't get so low as their enemies can.

British Post Office, or the Benefit of Cheap Postage.—The gross revenue of the British Post Office for the year ending June 5, 1850, was £2,243,149; the cost of management £1,307,218; the net revenue £840,787. The number of money orders issued £4,243, 891. The number of letters transmitted, between 3 and 400,000,000.

Secretary Barstow's receipts of fees for making out certificates as Commissioner of School Lands, during the past year, are $641.

Fire!—Our old friend Judge Bowker was burnt out on Monday night last, 24th inst.—How the fire originated is not known. Insurance, $1,500. The building consumed consisted of a store and dwelling, situated in the southeast part of the town of Delavan. The family made their escape through the room where the fire originated, and were enabled to rescue a portion of the household goods, which are heaped up in the Baptist Church.—Western Star, 28th ult.

Accident.—Mr. Mathias R. Tufts, ship carpenter, was seriously injured yesterday by falling while engaged at work at one of the wheels of the steamboat Hero, lying at the steamboat dock. It is feared that one or more of his ribs are broken.—New Haven Journal, Feb. 19.

New Invention.—A mechanic of Iowa has invented a new planing machine, which, he claims surpasses all other improvements in use. It is now being exhibited at Detroit.

New York Diocese.—The Right Rev. Carlton Chase, D. D., Bishop of New Hampshire has accepted the invitation of the Standing Committee, to perform Episcopal duties in that Diocese until the 1st of May next.

Wild Beast Hunt.—Mr. M. Fraser and brother, of Fond du Lac, passed through our village on their return from a hunting excursion up the Wisconsin. They had a wagon load of deer, wolf and fox skins. They had also, the carcasses of four full grown bears, and six living cubs, about five weeks old.—They attracted the curiosity of our citizens, particularly the juvenile part, who had never before witnessed such a sight.—Marquette Co. Mercury, 27th ult.

Jenny Lindenbergh.—There is a Swede in this city, by the name of Lindenbergh, waiting for the arrival of Jenny Lind, whom he claims as his first cousin. Her real name he says is Lindenbergh, her father and his father being own brothers, but her father, owing to political troubles in Sweden, changed his name, either before or soon after Jenny was born, to Lind, dropping the two last syllables. This is not an uncommon thing in those monarchial countries.—Cleve. Plaindealer.

Riot in Bridgeport.—A court for the trial of persons charged with selling liquor contrary to the statute, in Bridgeport, Ct., was broken up by a party of "regulators"; the Sheriff was badly beaten, and the counsel for the prosecution forcibly marched out of Court and to the Sterling House. The Mayor finally called out the police, and order was restored. The prosecutions have been, indefinitely postponed, and "order reigns in Warsaw."

The New Fashion—Ladies wielding pocket pistols.—The Philadelphia Pennsylvanian relates the extraordinary provocation which induced a young lady to draw a pocket pistol. Men must be careful how they wink. It says:

"We understand that a poor fellow was within an ace of being shot by an excited damsel, in an omnibus, the other day, because as the Amazon averred, he had winked at her. He saved himself by acknowledging that he had a natural squint, and that at the time the supposed provocation was given, he was looking at something in an opposite direction."

The editor thinks that these are illegitimate weapons for a lady to use, and are neither sanctioned by the divine or civil law:

"The use of such instruments as these, shows a determination on the part of the girls to do execution in a novel and scarcely legitimate manner. Eye-balls are the only globular weapons, which have been legalized in the wars of Cupid; the use of pistol-balls is an innovation that must be seen to."

"Ole Virginny never Tire."—But it does though. William Watts, shoe dealer of Richmond, stopping at the American House, has been hunting in vain for a fugitive slave, who is dwelling in one of our gates where he liketh him best. The slave has seen him, but he cannot see the slave. The poor fellow [we mean the slave hunter,] has concluded to give it up, and be crried back himself to "Old Virginia's shore." Let it be enough for him to deal in soles, not souls.—Boston Commonwealth.

☞A wag, after hearing a very inspired dialogue between two noodles, exclaimed:

"As Dolly and Dozer were walking one day,
Says Dolly to Dozer, 'Why, Dozer, I say'—
'Well, Dolly, what have you to say unto Dozer?'
'Why, look, sir,' said Dolly, 'I really don't know sir.'"

For the Free Democrat.

Speaker Horn's Speech.

Mr. Editor,—Mr. Horn says he always fondly believed that the 4th of July was celebrated for freedom, and for the declaration that "all men are created equal; that they were endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among them were life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." He then, as a true hater of equality, denounces the land limitation bill as an odious and anti-republican law. Since men are created equal, I hold it is the duty of him, and all legislators, to study to keep them equal as far as practicable, and thus work out the greatest happiness principle to mankind. The affairs of the world, as they have been managed hitherto, as a general rule, have always tended to make the rich richer, and the poor poorer. We will always have comparatively rich and poor, but I fondly hope the time will yet arrive that will remove the great extremes that exist in the circumstances of mankind generally.—The pursuit of all of us should be to place and preserve all mankind in as equal and comfortable circumstances as possible. But Mr. Horn seems to think that the pursuit of happiness consists entirely in accumulating large possessions; in joining house to house, and laying field to field; the very thing the bill forbids; whereas the pursuit of happiness should not be only in the earth, and for himself, but for the comfort and happiness of his brethren of mankind. He is of the earth, earthy, and shall have his reward accordingly.

How perverted are the views and feelings of some men! They are all for self, and nothing for neighbor. The pursuit of happiness varies in every individual, and it ought to be checked whenever it operates against the happiness of society at large. Many have their pursuit of happiness in drinking, gambling, and debauchery. Others in warring and fighting and destroying their fellow-men; many in dress, pomp and show, and in following the varying fashions of the day; some in dogs and horses, in fishing and and fowling; and some in amassing money, and large estates of houses and lands. But all these yield, in the end, no solid satisfaction, for all are striving to outstrip their neighbors, not in real goodness, but in the false trappings and ways of the world. Both the straight and crooked ways to monopoly of land, are beautifully cleared up by Mr. Wilson's bill, no one having 4 acres of city lots, or 640 acres of land, being allowed to acquire more. If this don't become a law, it ought to; and it would tend to direct the minds of speculators and monopolists to new, and I hope, more praise-worthy fields of operation, than that of raising the price of land, and grabbing all they can from their poorer neighbors, through loans and mortgages.—Thousands have lost their farms, and been reduced to poverty and great privations, without homes of their own forever, by the heartless speculators getting them entangled in their nets thro' loans and mortgages, and then abiding their time, they pounce upon their victims and take their farms. This is a trade, or calling, that many pursue and make fortunes by, though they are doing no useful labor, but on the contrary, are living and getting riches and great possessions by preying on their poorer neighbors. "'Tis a custom, but one more honored in the breach than in the observance."

"It is awful to think that such a state of things is tolerated in this free republic." If the bill will drive away the greedy land cormorants, who are always looking out for their prey, and who are not satisfied with the idea of obtaining a whole section of land, so much the better. Let Mr. Horn, and all such, go where they please, I, for one, don't wish them here, as I detest their principles; for they can see no beauty in the doctrine of equality, but wish to do with their own as they like, and are opposed to the great and good results that would flow from equality. But if they should go, this measure of equality will bring in their stead a thousand times more good men and true, who forsee the great and happy results of land limitation, and free homes to all.

Mr. Horn has too much of the spirit of the aristocracy of the Old World in him; he wishes to let the people get all they can, and he cannot tell how much land will satisfy them, and is quite regardless and blind to the good of his neighbors, and society at large. The land he says will be reduced in price by the bill. This is a great evil, truly! What was it that brought Mr. Horn, and all of us here, but cheap and good land? The state is to be ruined by cheap land! He might as well maintain that people will be starved by abundance of cheap food; while we all know that it is cheap land and food that bring them here; and all who are not pleased with 640 acres may clear out when they please, for the mass of the people may be plundered and degraded, but can never be improved and elevated by rich men. If the law affects orphans, widows, and dearly beloved relations, we have the consolation to know that they are not the poor, nor the landless, nor homeless; and there are thousands of such among us deprived of both by the present system. Mr. H. laments the case of his Hon. friend, Mr. Walker. "who has 200 or 300 village or city lots! If he leave them to his beloved brother, he can only keep four, and 296 must be sold within one year." And oh, his grief, at the cheapness at which they will be sold! Shame, he says on such a law! It is a hard case, this of the brother, if he should fall heir to the 300 lots; he is certainly to be pitied! My sympathies, I must confess, are with the poor, who have nothing, rather than with the rich, who have abundance; and I think, too, that both reason and scripture are on my side.

FARMER'S GUIDE.

LEONARD SCOTT & CO.

No. 54 Gold street, New-York,

Continue to publish the four leading British Quarterly Reviews and Blackwood's Magazine, in addition to which they have recently commenced the publication of a valuable Agricultural work, called the

"Farmer's Guide to Scientific and Practical Agriculture,"

By Henry Stephens, F R S. of Edinburgh, author of the "Book of the Farm," etc. etc; assisted by Jno P. Norton M A., New Haven, Professor of Scientific Agriculture in Yale College, etc.

This highly valuable work will comprise two large royal octavo volumes, containing over 1400 pages, with 18 or 20 splendid steel engravings, and more than 600 engravings on wood, in the highest style of the art, illustrating almost every implement of husbandry now in use by the best farmers, the best methods of ploughing, planting, haying, harvesting, &c, the various domestic animals in their highest perfection; in short, the pictorial feature of the book is unique, and will render it of incalculable value to the student of agriculture.

The work is being published in semi-monthly numbers, of 64 pages each, exclusive of the steel engravings, and is sold at 25 cents each, or $5 for the entire work in numbers, of which there will be at least twenty-two.

The British Periodicals re-published are as follows, viz:

LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW, (Conservative.)
EDINBURGH REVIEW, (Whig.)
NORTH BRITISH REVIEW, (Free Church,)
WESTMINSTER REVIEW, (Liberal,) and BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE, (Tory)

Although these works are distinguished by the political shades above indicated, yet but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects It is their literary character which gives them their chief value and in that they stand confessedly far above all other journals of their class. Blackwood, still under the masterly guidance of Christopher North, maintains its ancient celebrity, and is, at this time, unusually attractive, from the serial works of Bulwer and other literary notables, written for that magazine, and first appearing in its columns both in Great Britain and in the United States. Such works as "The Caxtons" and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer,) "My Peninsular Medal," "The Green Hand," and other serials, of which numerous rival editions are issued by the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by those publishers from the pages of Blackwood, after it has been issued by Messrs Scott & Co, so that subscribers to the Reprint of that Magazine may always rely on having the earliest reading of these fascinating tales.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The jury in the case of Patrick Marony agreed on a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree, this morning about ten o'clock! For some time the jury stood divided 11 to 1 for bringing him in guilty of the indictment.

This morning chancery business was on the carpet.

LAND LIMITATION DISCUSSION.—The Committee of the Young Men's Association have made arrangements to have a discussion on the question of Land Limitation, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, in Gardiner's Hall. Speakers are engaged on both sides.

AN ARRIVAL.—Last night about 8 o'clock, the tallest kind of a mail arrived. One of the largest meetings ever held in this city, collected in and around the Post Office, while the "documents" were being distributed—The office was kept open to a late hour, to accommodate the public, and to relieve the anxiety of those who had been waiting for "just such" an arrival some week or ten days

NAVIGATION OPEN.—It sounds quite natural to hear the Omnibusses rattling through the streets, as they used to do, on the arrival of the evening boat. We only hope they'll have occasion to go often.

HARD SLEDDING.—Yesterday and this morning, some industrious persons, in the persevering pursuit of pleasure, got out their cutters, sleighs and jumpers, and drove about the streets a little. The horses thought it was slaying for them, in earnest.

MOVING OFF.—The rubbish on the site of the late fire, is being removed, to make room for substantial and elegant structures.

A MATERIAL SAVING.—The railroad brings flour from Waukesha for 10 cents per barrel. The price by teams was 25 cents.

☞ The Volksfreund of this morning, has an article, in which it speaks highly of the manner in which his Honor, Esq. WALWORTH, Police Justice, has discharged the duties of his office. We are happy to be able to endorse all it says, and express our opinion that few cities have as faithful, efficient and capable an officer to attend to the hard cases, as Milwaukee.

☞ Rev. Mr. BASSETT, will preach in the Free Church, to-morrow (Friday) evening, on the history, relations and prospects of the United States government in regard to Slavery, and the duty of American citizens in the present crisis. Also, resolutions touching the execution of the Fugitive Slave law, and other kindred subjects, will be presented for the consideration of the meeting.

GOING OFF.—Under the influence of a warm sun and mild wind the last instalment of winter is fast disappearing.

DISTRIBUTED.—The members of the Milwauke Art Union attended the annual distribution of pictures, last evening. We saw some of the fortunate ones, this morning, chuckling over their good luck.

☞ The Sentinel and Volksfreund have expressed their opinion as to the qualifications of Alderman Rodgers for Mayor.

As the Wisconsin has put us on the track for the next legislature, before the present one has adjourned, it should not be behind hand in regard to the office of Mayor. Speak out neighbor.

CITY TREASURER.—We understand that many of our ablest and best citizens, of all parties, have suggested the name of Frederick Wardner, for City Treasurer. We believe his election to that office would give general satisfaction.

☞ The "doggerel" in yesterday's daily is original, and written expressly for our paper. —Cleveland True Democrat.

Rich, isn't that.

Ex-Mayor Barker, of Pittsburgh, had a fight the other night, got a black eye, and made a speech.

"Mister, lend me a shillin," said a boy to a wealthy man, yesterday, as the latter was stepping into his carriage."

"What claim have you on me, my son?"

"Cause," was the rejoinder, "you used to sell my dad apples when you was a boy." The shilling came out enlarged by a half dollar.

Two Irishmen were travelling to Portland a few months since, when they stopped to examine a guide board.

"Twelve miles to Portland," exclaimed one.

"Sax miles apace, jaist," said the other; and on they trudged, apparently much gratified at their sudden proximity to Portland.

Milton was one day asked by a friend of female education, if he did not intend to instruct his daughters in the different languages. "No Sir," replied Milton, "one tongue is sufficient for a woman."

If you would increase the size and prominence of your eyes—just keep an account of all the money you spend foolishly, and add it up at the end of the quarter.

Water-proof shirts are coming into fashion. The bosoms are made of sheet iron, and the ruffle consists of a handsaw, with the teeth set wide.

Why is a vain young lady like a confirmed drunkard? Because neither of them are satisfied with a moderate use of the glass.

A SUBURBAN ROMANCE.

[Concluded.]

In the end he promised to try and see Manette the following day; and, descending to his shop, worked away harder than ever.

Even now I see Bevil as, next morning he stood at the door opposite. His lips quiver; but his brow expresses a firm but anxious purpose. The woman who admits him tells him something which surprises and disappoints him. Manette, for the first time for a month, had gone out. The next day was Sunday, and the lover abstained from intruding himself.—On the Monday he had as little success. In the evening he consulted me as to what he had better do. Should he write?

I advised him by no means to commit himself; and offered if he would wait, I would use the influence of my cloth to obtain an interview for him. When the morning came, Bevil desired to accompany me. He would, he said, go himself; but would feel comforted and fortified by the sanction of my presence.

Accordingly we sallied forth across the road at noon the next morning. I would not wait to hear the answer of the landlady; but, pushing by the driver of a spring cart that had just stopped at the house, went straight up to Manette's door. Bevil followed. I knocked; no answer. Not a sound within. I knocked again, and quietly called her by name. Utter silence. I then tried the door; it yielded, and we entered.

The picture of neatness and prettiness which I had drawn as existing behind those dainty muslin curtains was not realized. It was indeed reversed. The room was in the greatest confusion, and untenanted. "Why you see, Sir," said the woman of the house who had ushered the carter up behind us, "Madam'selle went away the first thing yesterday morning. She sold her bits of things to the broker (you'll have to get the sofa bed out o' window, Mr. Bracket,) and never give us no notice in a regular way (now mind the walls with them saucepans,) leastways not a week's; but my husband never went for to charge her, poor thing, for she paid as punctual as the Monday morning cum—allays."

"Has she left her present address?" I asked.

"O dear no, quite countary. Says she to me, says she—leastways as well as I cound understand her French brogue, and she had her hand'kercher a kivering of her face—Mrs. Blinkinson'" says she, "don't," says she, "answer no questions as may be asked about me. I am a going," says she, "to where I hope nobody may find me out." "And then she pulled the street door to, and I never see her more—and never shall."

I looked at Bevil. He was shivering as if an icy chill had struck to his heart. He looked round the room slowly and vacantly. The bird was lying at the bottom of its cage—dead. The flowers, no longer tended, were drooping. He stretched forth his trembling hand, and, plucking a geranium, put it into his bosom. He then turned, and, without speaking, decended the stairs. With unsteady gait he entered his own house.

For more than a week I missed the sounds from below. Bevil had gone straight to his bed-room, and had not left it since. His mother now, instead of tending him with glue-pots, was constantly on the stairs with broths, and coffe and tea, and a variety of other sloppy sustentations; but her son would partake of them but very sparingly. I determined to rouse him, and advised that, as he would not or could not work, an active search after the lost damsel was better than stolid, inactive grief. This roused him, and he followed my advice.

Weary days and weary weeks were spent in the search. The cunning Stilhouette eluded him as if he had been an Ombre Chinois Bevil first addressed himself to the shop for which Manette had worked. The master of it that he never saw Manette but one, and then she came with specimens of her embroidery, to get more. It was so good that he had employed her ever since, and was both surprised and chagrined at her sudden desertion. He had, through her landlord, offered her a good salary to work at his house, and had hoped she would accept. Her strange disappearance was therefore the more unaccountable.

The clergyman of the French church, when Bevil sought him, was as surprised as her lover at Manette's absence from service and communion. In the latter he said she was a deeply-impressed partaker. He could give no information. Neither could the officers of the hospital, where the girl's father had died in the winter (of whom Bevil also inquired,) give him comfort.

"There is nothing for it," I told him one day, "but time and work."

He did after a time resume his work, but the sounds given out from his bench made me melancholy. His tools were taken up, used and laid down, with a slow, intermittent apathy, which showed that the heart and the hands did not go together.

Work, on the contrary, grew so fast on my hands, that I hardly had time for sleep My successor to the curacy I had left in Southwark was taken ill, and besides my own duty, I had volunteered to do a part of his. This occasionally consisted in administering consolation and prayer to the inmates of one of the Borough hospitals.

During one of my visits to the female ward, I was attracted by a few words which fell from the clinical lecturer who was addressing a knot of pupils standing at the bedside on a case of tumour of the face. He had, in fact, (warming with his subject,) glided from an explanation of the operation which had been performed and of the after treatment, to an involuntary eulogium on the beauty of the patient, which the consequences of the disease and its remedy tended to impair. I got a peep at the damsel between the shoulders of a couple of the shortest listeners, and saw just above the bedclothes (which were held up with extreme rigidity and care to conceal the lower part of the face) a pair of familiar black eyes. They quite thrilled through me. The students were dismissed; and I overheard a sweet voice ask "if sat scar—"

"Don't let it trouble you for one instant," said Dr. Fluum, as he left the bed-side; "it will hardly be visible, and in a week, you will be as well—and as pretty—as ever."

I looked again. The piercing black eyes met mine point-blank. There was a scream, smothered by the bedclothes—under which the head was instantly popped.

But that was enough. I felt convinced that Manette was found.

About a month from that date there was joy at No. I, Peppermint Place. It is November; on one side of my fireplace sit Bevil and Manette. Old Mrs. Bevil had gradually pushed her chair back to the window; and bit by bit has nibbled folds of the curtain, until she is completely hidden behind it in that comfortable obscurity in which she alone delights.—They had assembled to hear a lecture from me.

"Personal vanity," I began with all the solemnity to be invoked in the presence of a pair of eyes, which sparkled so with joy, that it seemed impossible for their mistress to school and temper them to the occasion—"the vanity of mere personal comeliness had nearly wrecked the happiness of both of you. Because you, Manette, was afflicted with a mere tumour that distorted for a time that which you seemed to cherish more than your worldly welfare—your beauty—you sold your worldly goods and deserted your home, and means of subsistence, rather than the deformity should be seen by one whom you secretly loved. Had you no confidence in the attractions which never fade, that you depended solely upon those which, despite all your efforts, will assuredly pass away?"

"Non," said Manette, lifting her eyelids with a sort of timid courage. "He loved me only for my face—he'ad nevare spoken.—When he saw and loved my face, it was comme il faut. Eh, bien! if he'ad seen my face when it was horrib' disfigured, would he not have hate me? Qui."

A pardonable impulse thew Bevil's arm over the back of Manette's chair, as he exclaimed—

"Oh' no, no."

"You were, I must say, both to blame.—Bevil for timidity, and Manette for rashness," I remarked.

Manette looked down on the prettiest little toe in the district of St. Barnabas, as it pointed itself to trace in outline the pattern of the hearth-rug, and went into a long explanation of her motives in the most delicious broken French. She was quite alone in the world, and the pain and hideous tumour in her face prevented her from working—she saw ruin, and nothing but ruin before her. The day her bird died, she felt so desolate that she determined to go to a hospital, in order to have the operation performed. On recovering, if she had been much disfigured, she intended never to see Bevil more. She had not courage to bear the disappointment which he might have indicted, by the altered sentiments she anticipated in her lover, in consequence of her altered appearance; and she preferred the certainty of trying to forget him. If she were perfectly cured, she intended again to return to her old lodging, and by hard work to regain her furniture.

The end of this, like most other romances, was marriage. With marriage, as is well known, all mysteries vanish. Manette's story was this:—Her father was a political refugee from the storm of 1848; he had been a staunch Orleanist Deputy in the French Chamber, and had to fly, with his daughter, for his life. In England he taught his native tongue as a means of livelihood, till overtaken by illness. Then Manette practiced as an accomplishment she was proficient in, with such success that she supported her father till his death. She knew the time would come when the family property they possessed near Bordeaux would be restored, and she did not wish to let her situation be known, especially to the unhappy family at Claremont. Hence, she kept herself a recluse till the terrible disappointment drove her to the hospital.

I was not allowed to honor of officiating, the minister of the French Protestant Chapel having been preferred. Of course I was obliged to remove to another lodging.

Nor did the Bevils stay long in Peppermint Place. Their united talents in the decorative arts did not long remain hidden. They removed to a fine house near Cavendish Square, and worked for the first nobility. A label in the window tells you, that there "They speak French."

Passing the shop the other day, I was surprised to find another name over the door.—The owner of it told me that Mr. Bevil had gone to live in France, in order to superintend his wife's estate on the Garonne. It appeared, then, that my piquant Silhouette had regained her patrimony. The next holiday I get I shall certainly pay them a visit.

HENRY NIEDECKEN,
A PRACTICAL BOOK-BINDER of long experience, in all its branches, would most respectfully inform the citizens of Milwaukee and the surrounding country, that he is prepared to bind any description of Books, being possessed of the best gilding and finishing tools, and keeping constantly on hand the first quality of binding material He has found it necessary, by reason of increasing business, (consequent upon his low price and superior quality of work and materials,) to open another
Bindery, Ruling and Blank Book Establishment, for the convenience of his "down town" friends, at the above mentioned place, where he will be happy to see his old customers and as many new ones as will favor him with their patronage
Blank Books for banks, merchants, county clerks, recorders, auditors, treasurers, school commissioners, magistrates, insurance offices, &c, manufactured in the best manner, which in elegance, durability, and superiority of style and finish, will not be surpassed by any eastern manufacturer. In all his large blank books, he uses the improved patent mode of sewing which gives strength, with great elasticity, and is incomparably superior to any other method for blank books, and will keep the leaves firm and solid while the book lasts, instead of coming to pieces, as is often the case with all other methods. No additional charge is made for this improvement.
Machine Ruling.—Ruling of every description, for blank books, tax lists, &c, neatly and promptly executed.
Fancy Articles.—He is also prepared to make all kinds of fancy articles, such as ladies' and gentlemen's portfolios, caskets, card, spectacle and segar cases, pocket books, &c, with neatness and despatch.
Ruled Music Paper.—He will also keep on hand a supply of blank paper ruled for manuscript music, which he can sell at so low a price that it will be a great saving of time, labor and money, to buy this all ruled and ready for writing the music
Albums, Magazines, Music Books, &c, will be bound with the greatest care, and in a neat and elegant style, to which the attention of the ladies is most particularly invited.
Bibles, Hymn, Prayer and School Books, are constantly kept on hand, as also
STATIONERY, of all kinds, such as writing paper, ink, quills, steel pens, sealing wax, slates, writing books, and wafers, and a variety of books too numerous to mention.
GILT PICTURE FRAMES.
He is also in constant receipt, (imported direct from Germany by himself,) of a superior article of gilt frames, of all sizes, which he will sell at prices which cannot fail of suiting purchasers. He will be happy to show his goods and style of work to all who will favor him with a call, as he is confident that he can please every variety of taste By good work and honest dealing, he expects to gain the patronage of the citizens of Milwaukee and the surrounding country oct12 d2d

OR
MODERN DOMESTIC MEDICINE
BY KEITH IMRAY, M. D.
Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, and Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh.
AMERICAN EDITION.
One large Octavo Volume, substantially bound.

THIS work presents a concise but clear view of the predisposing causes, premonitory signs, and distinguishing symptoms of disease, with the methods of cure recommended by the most eminent physicians.

The best modes of employing the medicines in general use are faithfully described; and the most approved rules for regulating diet and regimen during the periods of disease and convalescence, are amply furnished.

The art of Preserving Health, embracing special Treatises on Diet, Air, Temperance, Bathing, Clothing, and Exercise, is fully considered.

The publishers of the American edition have introduced Dr. Imray's work with short, illustrated, very complete sketches of Anatomy, Physiology and Surgery; and with directions for the domestic management of the sick, the preparation of their food, and the economy of the sick room, &c. They have also annexed a comprehensive MOTHER'S MEDICAL GUIDE, containing directions for the preservation of health during pregnancy, rules for managing the lying-in-room, and the treatment of infants, including air, clothing, exercise, &c. Also, a large number of valuable prescriptions, arranged for ready application; and a very full classified table of medicines, exhibiting their medicinal properties, doses and uses.

The Index is unusually complete, making the whole a most perfect and valuable work for families.

It can confidently be recommended to physicians and apothecaries, as well as to the public, as a book that will be found singularly convenient for ready reference.

☞ Agents are wanted to circulate the above work. Several counties in Wisconsin not yet occupied. Address
S. CHAPMAN, General Agent for Wisconsin, at Milwaukee.
The most liberal terms given. jan15 6

GREAT ARRIVAL OF WINTER GOODS!
191 East Water st., Martin's New Block.

EXTRAORDINARY AND DAILY INCREASING ATTRACTIONS AT CAMERON'S
NEW-YORK STORE.
Established in Milwaukee in May, 1849,

IN connection with one of the most extensive Importing Houses in New York city, for the purpose of establishing a large and permanent business, on the Cash system.

The proprietors of this already well known and popular establishment take this way of informing numerous patrons, in town and country, that they have made such arrangements to meet the exigencies of their rapidly increasing business, as will enable them to offer still greater inducements to purchasers Their Fall and Winter stock is beyond comparison the most extensive and varied

In the Western Country, embracing every article usually found in first class houses in the Atlantic cities.

To those who have already dealt with them, they deem it unnecessary to allude to their ability and determination to undersell any other House west of New York city. To those who have not yet examined

THEIR STOCK OR PRICES, they would say, through their connection in New-York, and an almost unlimited business, they are enabled to keep a resident buyer of great experience in New York and Boston markets, and many other goods are imported direct for their own trade in the original packages, thus securing many

New and Choice Styles of Goods, that cannot be found at any other establishment here.

Their arrangements are so complete that they can, and pledge themselves that they will sell every piece and style of goods as low as they can be bought in the most celebrated cheap stores in New York or Boston Every piece and style of goods in this establishment, being bought of first hands or at auction, or imported direct, and consequently from

25 to 30 PER CENT. LESS than Western Merchants pay for them—in fact we sell many styles of goods for less than western merchants pay for them in New York or Boston. Every article will be marked at the very lowest price, and will be guaranteed less in every instance than a similar article can be bought elsewhere

We annex the following list of prices—which we think can hardly fail to convince the public—that this is not one of the humbug pretensions of the day

☞ Bliss' Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy.—The Codfish has furnished our yeomen with a wide field of labor and the tastes of our people with a delicious article of food for many years, but it is only until a recent period it has been found, that the oil extracted from the liver of the fish could be used as an article of the materia medica. Since its introduction it has wrought the most wonderful changes in the features of the affections of the throat and lungs. The virtues of Cod Liver Oil are acknowledged the world over, and all these virtues are found combined in Bliss's Candy, which stands unrivalled as a remedy for Coughs, &c Beware of counterfeits

LIFE ASSURANCE.
☞ Ætna Insurance Company, HARTFORD, Conn.—Annuity Fund, $150,000.
—This well known and long established Company, having organized a new department for LIFE INSURANCE, with an entirely distinct capital, exclusively pledged with its reserved accumulations, for the payment of losses upon Life Insurance only, and in no event liable for the other debts, contracts, or engagements of the Company, is now prepared to issue Policies on Lives, at rates materially reduced from those charged by the Mutual Companies. The leading idea of the system adopted by this Company, is, to ascertain precisely what it is worth to insure a given amount upon a life for a certain time, and to charge precisely that sum, and no more. It is attended with none of those vexatious contingencies which are inseparable from the mutual system—it has nothing to do with scrip dividends or bonuses, the declaration of which upon true and equitable principles, is attended with so much difficulty and perplexity—it is perfectly simple, as well as uniform and equal in all its operations.

The promptness, fairness and liberality which have marked all the dealings of this Company, for a period of thirty years, and the well known character of its officers and directors, afford the surest guaranty that its affairs will be so managed as to afford to the assured that ultimate safety and security which is of first importance in Life Assurance.

Policies will be granted payable after death, or upon the party's arriving at a specified age, at his option; in either case, free from the claims of creditors The usual extra risks will be assumed by this Company at reasonable rates.

Pamphlets containing Rates of Premium, and information in relation to the plan of operations, and all necessary papers to effect insurance, may be obtained at the Agency of this Company.

TO THE LADIES.
DYER'S WASHING, BLEACHING AND CLEANSING FLUID!
The greatest labor-saving article yet discovered
BY its use, washing machines and boards and hard rubbing, are entirely dispensed with, and not one quarter of the labor is required to do the washing of a family. The Fluid is a chemical compound of sufficient strength to extract all foreign substances from the cloth, by simply boiling a small quantity of it with the clothes, and without the slightest injury to the most delicate fabric
The expense is not more than that of the soap ordinarily used, and besides this it will be seen that the great wear and tear of clothing consequent upon the old method of hard rubbing upon a board, and the use of the pounding barrel, is wholly dispensed with, and an immense saving is thus made. It is emphatically the female's friend ☞ Warranted to give perfect satisfaction or the money will be refunded.
Prepared only by Charles Dyer, Jr, at his medical depot, 52 Westminster st, Providence, R I.
